

The best of Tennessee.

It all comes together in Roane.

Roane County is home to inviting waterways, a robust recreational life and breathtaking vistas. Whether you live here or visit, you'll enjoy family-friendly festivals, bluegrass music, stunning Watts Bar Lake with world-class fishing, and historic towns and museums.

We partner as a community to achieve the best life for our residents, for the business community and for the many visitors who are attracted to our desirable location.

Uncover our fascinating past.

Soak up history that changed our world.

Since its creation in 1801, Roane County and its five unique, historic communities—Harriman, Kingston, Rockwood, Oak Ridge and Oliver Springs—have attracted visitors and commerce to a place filled with beauty and opportunities.

Look over the rich land we call Roane County. Picture settlers building a way station such as Fort Southwest Point in the late 1700s. Imagine their delight at the view from the fort's position on a bluff overlooking the confluence of the Tennessee, Clinch and Emory rivers. Explore this Kingston fort, which serves as Tennessee's only colonial-era museum standing in its original location.

On 1,200 acres, Oak Ridge's award-winning Heritage Center repurposes a complex formerly of the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE). The DOE and the Oak Ridge community initiated a Reindustrialization program to utilize facilities originally used for research and development by the DOE. The program begun here serves as a nationwide model with great success.

Discover the mystery of the Secret City and the Manhattan Project, Oak Ridge's Atomic Age story. Learn how more than 75,000 people quietly assembled to create a workforce and a town that didn't appear on any map. Talk with National Park Service rangers and tour "secret" sites to find out what lay behind X-10, Y-12 and K-25 and this industrial complex in the hills of East Tennessee, now established as a national historical park.

ROANE COUNTY COURTHOUSE

Listen to the quiet.

Give into the wild.

Nature's all around you in Roane County. Watts Bar Lake brims with striper, largemouth and spotted bass, catfish and crappie. Duck hunting is popular during winter. It's prime for birders: great blue herons, osprey and bald eagles. From the dock, watch geese gliding and listen to a nighttime frog serenade.

Among the county's wildlife management areas, Paint Rock provides hunters and anglers 1,600 acres along Watts

Bar Lake. Bird-watchers enjoy Thief Neck and Long Island, accessible by boat. Mount Roosevelt presents 11,000 acres and a striking view of the Tennessee River Valley, windmills on Windrock Mountain and the Smoky Mountains.

Sailing wakes up your senses. Feel the wind on your face, hear the rustle of leaves, see flags flutter and watch wavelets on the water.

We know how to

Here, time out is a good thing.

Take a trip to any of our downtown areas and spend time browsing through antiques and specialty shops. Enjoy delightful treats at one of our bakeries, or a milkshake at the old-fashioned soda fountain. Visit the antebellum courthouse in Kingston, or the historic railroad depot in Oliver Springs, now an archival library for the county.

Enjoy performing arts and concerts at Roane State's O'Brien Theatre or the Princess Theatre in Harriman, a restored 1920s-era, art deco cinema. The newly restored 1915 Abston Garage in Oliver Springs is now a community theater and historical museum.

Listen to live music at venues such as Bradbury Community Club's bluegrass, every Tuesday and third Saturdays. Ladd Landing Listening Club has a laid-back vibe that pairs well with its singers/songwriters. Lakeside restaurants offer music or karaoke. Stop by Riverfront Park in Harriman for the easy sounds of the Babahatchie Band on a summer Sunday.

A life well lived.

A vibrant community.

Festivals here are full of music. Like Rockwood's Thunder Road Festival. Kingston's Smokin' the Water is a day-long, waterfront celebration, with the APBA Pro Series National Championship boat races and the largest 4th of July fireworks in East Tennessee. It's Celtic music in May at the Tennessee Medieval Faire. Downtown Harriman and Rockwood rock during summer Cruise-ins, with classic cars and motorcycles.

Watts Bar Lake is home to the 2010 National Bass Federation Championship, with annual events such as Rockin' on the River, the Tennessee Team Trail and fishing tournaments nearly every weekend spring through fall.

Athletes "race for the cannon" in the Storm Fort Half Distance and Sprint Triathlon. Race in the Oak Ridge Omnium or Three River Rumble, a multi-day, three-city bike race that includes a State Championship Criterium course in downtown Rockwood. Stay on your toes with 5Ks, including the Moonlight for Sight 5K in October along the waterfront in Kingston.

It's how you have fun that counts.

Get away, enjoy your stay.

Relax where New England architecture meets East Tennessee natural beauty at lovely Whitestone Country Inn. Go for a weekend getaway, a reunion or a wedding, or to create new memories. Soak up Southern dining done right. Take a carriage ride past the lakeside chapel and gazebo. Watch wingspan of osprey, and hike rolling meadows with Scottish Highland cattle.

Camp Kingston's Riley Creek, with sites for RVs and tents on beautiful Watts Bar Lake. Caney Creek RV Resort, lakefront in Harriman, keeps you moving on trails, canoes and paddleboards. Rent a cabin or home through Tennessee Lakefront Cottages.

Windmill Inn—on the Devil's Triangle in Oliver Springs, near Coal Creek OHV—caters to bikers and all-terrain riders.

A place to relax.

A place to call home.

Natural beauty and recreation are part of the good life here in Roane County. With four colorful seasons, generally mild temperatures and surrounded by water, we're in the Tennessee Valley, set against the backdrop of Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Home to Watts Bar Lake, water sports and fishing are among recreational favorites and can be enjoyed year-round.

Off the water, golfers can play a round of traditional golf at any of our five courses, where cart paths and Bermuda grass await you. Or, throw an ace shot in the basket at a disc golf course. Bikers and hikers will enjoy the many miles of trails here.

LIVING IS EASY HERE.

Roane County's 700-plus shoreline miles are among the least developed in the state. You'll find affordable lake property in abundance. A must-see historic district is Harriman's Cornstalk Heights.

- Ladd Landing, Kingston: Community with 800 acres overlooking the Clinch River. Town center, bike paths, restaurants, retail shops and many conveniences.
- Grande Vista Bay, just outside Rockwood: Waterfront and gated, 1,200 forested acres, boat slips and recreational amenities.
- The Preserve, Oak Ridge: Parks, walking trails, a town center and lots of leisure opportunities.
- Whitestone, Kingston: Choose living at The Pointe, a residential development, or on the family farm, among seven tracts with 18 to 27 acres.
- Windmill Inn—on the Devil's Triangle in Oliver Springs, near Coal Creek
- OHV—caters to bikers and all-terrain riders.

High tech and low taxes.

We're in a good place.

You'll find a convenient, affordable lifestyle in Roane County, with easy access to quality healthcare, an active volunteer community, and opportunities for second careers for retirees. Financially strong, Tennessee has low taxes, with the lowest debt per person in any state. We have no state income tax or transfer tax.

Roane County employs more than 5,000 engineers, 2,400 scientists and 2,000 PhDs. Our Innovation Corridor focuses on cutting-edge classroom technology to develop workforce-ready graduates. The school system is aligned with post-secondary opportunities designed to meet growing workforce demands, closing the skills gap and continuing the 75-year legacy of having the most skilled workforce.

- Middle College: A dual enrollment program for area high school students
- Roane State Community College, Harriman: With Oak Ridge and seven other locations
- Tennessee College of Applied Technology, Harriman: Premier provider for workforce development
- The University of Tennessee, Knoxville: Nine undergraduate and eleven graduate colleges

Success is here.

We're a natural choice for economic development.

With Tennessee's Innovation Corridor as the gateway to the Manhattan Project National Historical Park, Roane County's local infrastructure, strong economic climate and high quality of life make it an attractive choice for expansive opportunities. Situated within 500 miles of 75 percent of key U.S. markets, the county lies within a day's drive of two-thirds of the U.S. population.

Roane County has three locations that have met the stringent requirements for development to become a Select TN certified site by completing all the necessary initial due diligence for site selection.

SELECT TN CERTIFIED SITES

- Cardiff Valley Road Site, 45 acres in Roane County Industrial Park, with extensive infrastructure for heavy industrial companies
- Horizon Center, Development Area 6 Site, with an availability of over 150 acres, easy transportation access routes and near Oak Ridge National Laboratory
- Jones Road Site, 40 acres accessible to strategic transportation corridors, perfect for light to medium manufacturing or distribution centers

Roane's transportation infrastructure is geared toward progressive commerce. We have two interstates (I-40 & I-75), two major U.S. highways and the Tennessee, Clinch and Emory Rivers, with four river terminal facilities.

Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL), the nation's largest science and energy laboratory, is in Roane County. ORNL is soon to be the home to "Summit," the world's fastest supercomputer, which tackles national challenges for the Department of Energy, such as climate change and solutions for sustainable energy and transportation.

Volkswagen's Southeastern Regional Distribution Center is located in the Roane Regional Business & Technology Park. The $40 million, 459,000-square-foot center, the world's only silver LEED-certified distribution facility, distributes Volkswagen's Passat parts.

It's like no place you've ever been.

And the discoveries stay with you.

In the 1700s, Westward-bound settlers traveled Avery's Trace and discovered fertile land with magnificent mountains and rivers, now known as Roane County. Today, you'll still find discovery in our unique communities, settled among our abundant natural resources.

KINGSTON

Roane's county seat is Kingston, created after trading posts and inns grew up around Fort Southwest Point. By 1799, the fort was one of the American frontier's most important military posts. Kingston is known for its scenic waterfront, and for the county's largest and longest-running festival, Smokin' the Water, on July 4th.

HARRIMAN

Harriman was a planned community from its origin, mapped in a grid on December 25, 1890. Notice elegant Victorian architecture in Cornstalk Heights, 100 of which are properties in the National Register. Peek inside some homes during the Christmas Home Tour, or hear about its spooky history during the Haunting of Harriman.

ROCKWOOD

A Union officer returned from the Civil War to begin a mining and milling operation, after discovering iron on Walden Ridge. Rockwood was established around the Roane Iron Company. The Kingston Avenue Historic District represents architecture from this rich history. Rockwood is developing its waterfront as a recreation hub.

OLIVER SPRINGS

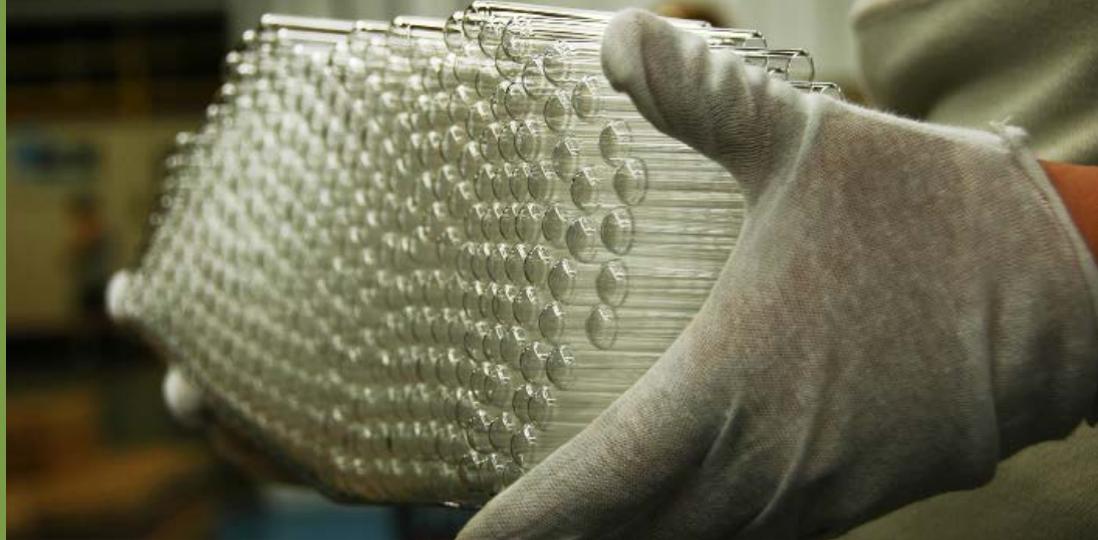

A natural mineral springs drew visitors to the town now known as Oliver Springs, established in 1930. "Oliver" came from the town's first postmaster. The "October Sky" movie was shot in the Oliver Springs coal mining area, as were scenes from its downtown. Visitors enjoy the fun and beauty of Windrock Mountain and the Coal Creek OHV area.

OAK RIDGE

In 1942, Oak Ridge was founded on remote farmland by the Army Corps of Engineers as an entity of Clinton Engineer Works, later ORNL. The Knoxville-Oak Ridge Innovation Valley facilitates the strengths of our 21st-century workforce, our transportation infrastructure, the affordability of our real estate—all within a 25-mile technology corridor.

A Unified Drive.

A Unified Force.

Roane County's outstanding location, ready infrastructure, educated workforce, available industrial sites and established resume of success in retail, tourism and industry have been key factors in its economic growth and success.
